This course is a critical examination of the foundational and contemporary texts in feminist thought. We will focus on key themes, questions, and concepts that are central to the field, including ideas about sex and gender, sexualities, embodiment, oppression, inclusion, and the pursuit of freedom. Students will learn how to evaluate debates internal to feminist thought and will consider how theory is related to the pursuit of living a feminist life.

Questions? Contact megan.burke@okstate.edu