Gender and Curriculum
CIED 5723
Thursdays, 7:20-10:00pm, Willard 301

Do you or are you planning to work with students in higher education, community settings, or in Pre-K-12 classrooms? Do you want to make sense of the role of gender in your classroom and teaching practice?

Course Description
Course participants will:
• Develop an understanding of historical and contemporary perspectives on gender in the context of schooling and education in a variety of settings and levels
• Study and develop their own pedagogy in relation to course readings and discussion
• Learn through their/our own memories and lived experiences of gender and schooling

About the Instructor
Erin Dyke, assistant professor of curriculum studies, has experience in early childhood education, youth and adult community education, higher education, and studies pedagogy in spaces of community organizing.

For more information: erin.dyke@okstate.edu