This course is an interdisciplinary introduction to the field of women’s studies and to key issues, theories, and methods related to the study of gender and women in transnational contexts. Course materials will incorporate information from a broad range of academic fields, and from multiple geographic locations and perspectives, beginning in Stillwater, Oklahoma and expanding outward. We will explore the connections and disconnections of women’s lived experiences across national, economic, political, and cultural borders and boundaries. We will engage the ways in which global policies, material desires, and powers affect and connect people locally and globally.
